Before lunch students participated in some drama games prepared by the Portuguese teachers and recorded in a register booklet, specially created for this mobility. Icebreakers, get-to-know-you exercises and confidence building activities were thought to help students get comfortable, warmed up and focused.

In the afternoon students were asked to get involved in the drama games –mime and movement; short improvisations and sound games which were played individually, in pairs or short groups.

At the end students were challenged to build a story to be role-played on Friday - Creative Writing. This theatre game integrated some behind-the-scenes exercises, which promoted working together on a shared goal and came out with a final “product” to be shared with everybody.
